INDIANAPOLIS (WISH) - Hats, coats, gloves and blankets top CHIP's wish list as local homeless shelters prepare for the arrival of colder temperatures.

"We're already experiencing that drop in temperatures and it's critical to the lives of our neighbors who are living on the streets that we come together in a tangible way by providing some extra layers," said Timothy Joyce, Executive Director of CHIP. "These simple provisions during severe weather are a lifeline."

The Coalition for Homelessness Interviewing and Prevention is asking Hoosiers to consider donating these items at Wheeler Mission, 245 N. Delaware St.

Wheeler Mission will open an overflow shelter as temperatures drop, but even with increased capacity, there will still be several people sleeping on the streets.
